- 1) Greeter/Note Taker 1 – Does exactly that: greets the incoming class by speaking about our class and going over the rules. At the end of the call they are also the ones that thank for the call. Once their job is done they become a Note Taker.
- 2) Questioner – They are the kids that ask the yes or no questions, often it is beneficial if these kids have a decent grasp of geography and can come up with questions on the fly.
- 3/4) Listener – These kids act as a listener to help the walkers and the questioners assessing the questions that are coming their way. They have to pay close attention to what answers are given and what has already been asked as the think tank often misses an answer. They can then use their common sense to filter the best questions to the questioners.
- 5) Answerer – answers yes or no to the questions and should have a good grasp of geography.
- 6/7) Walker – the walkers are responsible for communication between all of the different posts.
- 8) Google Mappers – Use Google Maps to try to help with questions or find the answer. Should be connected to think tank.
- 9) Atlas Mappers – part of the think tank and use an atlas to come up with more questions.
- 10) Lead thinker – this kid needs to be a gentle leader that can keep everyone organized and on track. They ensure the think tank runs smoothly.
- 11) Supervisor – this student oversees the entire operation and takes notes on what works and doesn't work. They lead the debriefing we have after every Skype call to discuss what we need to work on and be proud of.
- 12) Note taker 2 – writes down all answers and questions during the call for easy access by filters and if any confusion occurs.
- 13) Reporters – Photographer/Videographer
